PROPOSAL FOR CENTRAL, REGIONAL AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

1. There will be a three-tier structure of government: central, regional and local.
2. Each tier of government will be based on democratic representation, subject to the bill of rights and the constitution.
3. Each tier will have legislative, executive and fiscal authority in respect of powers which will be defined and enshrined in the constitution.
4. The government may delegate any of its powers to a regional government and a regional government may delegate any of its powers to a local authority.
5. The different levels of government may have concurrent powers.

Viljoen: 'Government' is ambiguous - is it it division of powers in the same field?

6. The regions will be defined on the basis of the 9 development regions, with appropriate alterations.
7. The constitution will recognise metropolitan governments for large urban areas.
8. The allocation of funds to the regions should be formula-based and not discretionary, so as to prefer underdeveloped over developed regions.
9. The allocation of funds by a region to its local authorities should be formula-based and not discretionary, so as to prefer underdeveloped over developed local authorities.
