Dear Reader,

Our country is on the brink of a crucial phase in its political history. Last year the largest political parties joined forces in the historic Convention for a Democratic South Africa (Codesa) — taking the first fragile step to political reconciliation.

Every agreement signed now at Codesa or when political leaders finally sit down to write a new constitution will effect your life for ever. But how much do you know about the process? Does your political party keep you posted on change? Are you satisfied that you are getting the whole picture from the press?

Chances are that you are one of millions of South Africans left in the dark because nobody has bothered to keep you informed.

We are going to change that.

If you are not a subscriber yet we have chosen you to receive a complimentary copy of Negotiation News.

This new specialist publication deals exclusively with the negotiation process. Our commitment is to record every decision your political representatives agree to on every issue every step of the way.

If you have read the first issue of Negotiation News you will see that we keep you posted not only on constitutional negotiations — but also on the economic debate, important announcements by political players, profiles on the negotiators, the role of women, and the position of special interest groups.

Whether you are a politician, business executive, cleric, civil servant, academic, concerned citizen or just a friend of South Africa, if you want to stay abreast of change we invite you to make use of our special opening offer and become a subscriber now.
