A few months ago we gave to government a "yes" vote to support them in a process of negotiation to create a better government system for our country.

The sole purpose of supporting government with the "yes" vote was to help them to continue negotiations and to maintain doing so until they could come up with more just and balanced solutions, not forced decisions. In a country as diverse as South Africa, no one party should have the power to rule. We need to find a unique solution whereby all parties have an equal say. I want to make it quite clear, never did we, the citizens of South Africa, give our support to the ANC or any other organization. Let this be as clear as daylight. We expect government to honour the promise they gave us on 17 March 1992.
