"The task is not yet finished. South Africa is not yet home for all her sons and daughters. Such a home we wish to ensure.

There remains before us the building of a new land, a home for all who are black, white, brown, from the ruins of the old narrow groups, a synthesis of the rich cultural strains that we have inherited.

Somewhere ahead there beckons a civilization, a culture, which will take its place in the parade of God's history beside other great human syntheses, Chinese, Egyptian, Jewish, European. It will not necessarily be all black; but will be African."

Chief Albert John Luthuli, who in 1961 became South Africa's first winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.
