If we legislate for a CMB. which will operate within an interim constitution, then the interim constitution would have to provide some mechanism for resolving disputes in the CMB, and hence would override it. *

If we have an "interim constitution" — must that not define an endpoint ~~to which~~ i.e. for us a new constitution. But if not spelt out, could we not be in danger of being entrenched in the interim constitution forever, or revert to Tri-cam?

See also IFP. parts 6, 7, 8. (document not on letterhead), which refers to Tri-cam being "parent" constitution.
